2/24-29 SKI ASPEN ON A BUDGET

Even the locals view Aspen with a bit of a nod to the rich and famous crowd that makes up a large part of the population here during the peak tourist seasons, now summer for concerts and winter for skiing. We will be staying down valley where lodging is not the usual $500-$1,000 a night, but that doesn't mean we can't tour shop and eat in town. Aspen is a very nice town situated in an idyllic mountain valley which reminds me a lot of Switzerland. Both in the fall amber or winter white this valley sparkles with life and color. Surprisingly Alpen is home to the largest free, yes you heard that correctly, no charge cross country and snowshoe network in the country. The network connects the resort towns of Aspen and Snowmass and runs further down valley to Basalt. This might give us the opportunity to eat breakfast in Aspen one day and ski home in the evening. There is also some unique ski touring opportunities at the head of the Aspen Valley following the east west highway which is closed in winter, which makes it a nice wide magic carpet into the Colorado Rockies. We will also ski some of the other remarkable touring centers on our way over and back from Denver, like the Breckenridge Center or the Keystone Nordic center which we visited on our last tour in Colorado. It is amazing how good the conditions are in these mountains, at Keystone I once stepped off the groomed trail system and plunged down two feet to the ground through dry fluff, like falling off a curb. The snow here never gets dense, never gets icy never sets up at all; remarkable! Provided: transit, rental car, airfare, lodging. Dates 2/24-29 Cost $1,383
