9/25-29 CANADIAN VALHALLA'S HIKE

Valhalla according to Norse mythology was the great hall of King Odin, god of war and death, wisdom and poetry, considered the "All-Father" of all Nordic Gods. Had Odin searched the Earth for Valhalla his search would probably have ended in the remote mountain area of Valhalla Provincial Park in Southeastern British Columbia. This 49,000 hectare park is of breathtaking beauty. It stretches from fjord like Slocan Lake - upwards almost over to Arrow Lake, another fjord-like body of water. The steep approach slopes are created by deep valleys covered in dense interior rain forest of ancient cedars, hemlocks and firs, rising up into alpine basins dotted with turquoise-blue lakes. These jewels are framed by peaks as high as 9,200 feet with Nordic names like Woden, Freya, Dag, Njörd, Gimli, and Asgard. This area is so unexplored that there is almost no information or guides on climbing or hiking in the area. I first learned of this area from my friend Ken Erickson who ran the BC Tourism office here in the states. He used to hike in the area and said it was his favorite place to hike. I spent some time skiing and exploring this area a few seasons back and gained an abiding appreciation for this very unique outdoor region.

This would be an opportunity for us to explore this little known and unexplored area by trail getting up into the high meadows and peaks on day hikes, returning to our showers and cozy beds at night. Provided: airfare, lodging, rental car. Dates 9/25-29 Cost $1,027
